

ABSTRACT

A digital camera showing on a display a graphical user interface having a first display portion for inputting priority ratio of high speed in access to an external memory card to recordable capacity in formatting the external memory card, a second display portion for showing a cluster size, and a third display portion for showing the number of images recordable to the external memory card. The recording medium is formatted with the cluster size shown on the second display portion in response to the user's manipulation.